3. Proposed modes of collaboration:

VMDC and JKSSC proposed to collaborate through the following:

a) Student Exchange: Students from both institutions can participate in exchange programs, allowing them to study at the partner institution for a semester or academic year. This provides an opportunity for students to gain diverse perspectives, experience different educational environments, and build network.

b) Faculty Exchange: Faculty members can exchange roles for a specified period, teaching courses or conducting research at the partner institution. This fosters cross-pollination of ideas, teaching methods, and research expertise.

c) Curriculum and Course Materials: Institutions can exchange curriculum materials, syllabi, and teaching resources. This helps in enriching the academic content and offering a broader array of courses.
d) Collaborative Research: Faculty and researchers from both institutions can collaborate on research projects, publications, and grants. Joint research initiatives can lead to innovative discoveries and strengthen academic reputations.

e) Access to Facilities: Sharing access to media production facilities, studios, editing suites, and equipment can be beneficial. This is especially valuable for institutions with specialized equipment or studios.

f) Guest Lectures and Workshops: Faculty and industry experts can conduct guest lectures and workshops at the partner institution, enhancing the learning experience for students.

g) Internship and Industry Connections: Institutions can facilitate internships and industry connections for their students at media-related companies and organizations, often in collaboration with the partner institution.

h) Networking and Conferences: Jointly organizing conferences, seminars, and events related to media can bring together students, faculty, and professionals for knowledge exchange and networking.

i) Publication and Media Production Collaboration: Collaboration on student publications, newsletters, blogs, or producing media content such as documentaries, films, or multimedia projects can be part of the exchange.

4. Terms and Conditions:

a) For continuing education to teachers and students, the financial arrangements will be made as per the mutually agreed terms.

b) For the visits related to advice and consultancy, travel and other expenses of both the faculty and staff shall be reimbursed on mutually agreed terms.

c) The faculty members and students can use the library facility and exchange the interests for the same.

d) Usage of academic infrastructure can be allowed for limited period subject to its availability, approval of head of the facility / department and Institute norms.

e) Both Institutes agree to help, identify and invite and the faculty members and researchers from the other Institutes to participate in conferences, workshops and short- term courses.
